PRESS RELEASE

Date: June 26, 2008

A group of students from Capt. Nathan Hale Middle School in Coventry have joined together to pioneer a recycling initiative in our community. The student participants are: Michael Clausen, Emma Gould, Shane Flynn, Molly Funk, Nicole Hosey, Tasha Valentin Jucius, Stephanie Morin, and Amanda Petruzielo. The focus of the group is to “go green” and encourage people to recycle through raising awareness in the community about the importance of this issue. This initiative has been broken down into three areas of focus: recycling, electronic waste collection, and composting. An educational campaign has been run in the school to reach out to the students and staff of the Coventry Public Schools in order to raise awareness and implement positive changes in these areas. This project is ongoing and will continue throughout the upcoming years at CNHMS. The students are coached by teachers Carla Kennedy and Linda Campbell.
