On Tuesday, September 28, the Eastern Highlands Health District (EHHD) hosted a Farm-to-Table Dinner. The dinner was held at the Hole in the Wall Gang Camp in Ashford, Connecticut. This event is part of the EHHD initiative to promote awareness of childhood obesity and create healthier communities. Proceeds from the evening benefited the Hole in the Wall Gang Camp. Mr. Christopher Jones, Family and Consumer Science teacher at Coventry High School, coordinated student culinary volunteers.

The student volunteers had an opportunity to work in a professional kitchen with talented chefs and assisted with greeting, serving, and clean up. Students from Coventry High School who participated were Marcin Kaziuk, Robert Lundquist, Glenden Merrell, Michael Provost, Britta Stelmach, and Brittany Strycharz. These students did an outstanding job representing Coventry High School. According to Kathleen Krider, one of the event organizers, “the CHS students were AWESOME! They worked hard, followed directions, and stayed for the big cleanup. They are to be thanked for their efforts which helped to make the evening a big success”!
